

ESSAY GANG IN TORONTO VIOLENCE

Free Essay: Statistics Canada has done research on identifying the facts that are TAVIS aims to reduce gang activity and gun violence in Toronto through.

And the consequences gained both mental, and practical. With respect to prevention, strategies for family-based support should address issues related to resettlement, academic and literacy capacity, family interaction, wellbeing and the influence of parents and siblings, family outreach and mentorship, and socioeconomic support. This also limits the possibility of accepting what Klein and Maxson refer to as 'conventional wisdoms' and assuming that what we learn about successful gang programming in one location can be applied to other locations. It was a street stripe—it helped boost my reputation. It is important to highlight that individuals join gangs for a variety of reasons, and these are not exclusive of one another. Aboriginal youth are assigned to the more disorganized, less profitable criminal opportunities including drug trafficking, assaults, and break-and-enters. The unit was disbanded in , but this year, Ms. In , shootings at the Eaton Centre, a multi-floor, downtown shopping mall, and at a block party in Scarborough, an eastern suburb of Toronto, also led to a flurry of promises to crack down on gang violence. You know those subway rats, who loiter at Kennedy, Vic Park and Main stations? And there are the soldiers, who follow the crowd, commit minor thefts and buy drugs for personal use. Ngo recommends certain principles to guide the development of programs and services for this population: Integration of empowering identity development initiatives should outline clear strategies to promote positive self-concept, Canadian identity and ethnic identity. Goodale also plans to raise the issue of a national requirement for health-care and other professionals to report certain mental-health issues to police when he meets with public-safety and justice ministers this fall. Gangs are a group of people that fight and kill other gangs over turf, money, pride, and drugs. As previously stated before, becoming involved in a gang starts at a young age. It was a gauge pump shotgun. On the surface, gangs may appear to be shallow and materialistic; a result of human beings' personal wants, but there are speculations that are more profound. They range in age from 10 to I was still committed to my youth program, which I named Bright Future Alliance. I won math awards at school and learned how to play chess with my sister. Population Specific Risk Factors The findings of several Canadian qualitative studies Footnote13 demonstrate that the individual, school, family and community risk factors for gang involvement that appear to have a negative influence on immigrant youth are often interrelated, leaving some youth with what seem to be insurmountable challenges. So, too, have many community activists in Toronto, who have urged officials to take concrete steps to address the root causes of gun violence in Canada's largest city for years. I was still just thinking about myself. People who are victims of racial discrimination are often racist I used to walk around with a baseball bat to intimidate people. Youth violence is a contribution to these gangs. What is a surprise to us is the lack of political leadership and resolve to deal with it, not only when it spills over into other communities, but in the communities where we know that it's normalised.